WEDNESDAY, MAY 26, 1880, Hampton, Va., and its Surroundings. DEAR GAZETTE :- I have just made a trip o Hampton, Virginia.

I took the fast train which leaves New York for Philadelphia at 4 P. M. and enjoyed the sensation of spinning along at the rate of a mile a minute. In n / Thory 14 25 every conceivable kind and description, selected from Hastern Markets with taste and care. Bought at the spring chicken were added fresh tomatoes, admits of steamers built solely for special comfort. We ran at the rate of 17 miles an necessary.

The General is about making a visit to the land of his birth. You may expect him by land of his birth. You may expect him by

The next morning we were nearing our journey's end. Hundreds of sail were in sight were hurrying out of our way as we ran along. On the western shore the low land with its strip of white beach in front, and pine trees with scanty tops stretching above the low growth of trees reminded me much of some parts of our Islands. It only needed the blue monntains looming above them to make the illusion complete. From the long lines and grassy slopes of the water, batteries of Fortress Munroe made their appearance and we passed the dismantled "Rip Raps" or one hand and on the other the old frigate Coustitution and the modern Saratoga, and at 8 A. M. made fast to the dock in front of the " Hygeia Hotel." This immense wooden structure has had its veranda fronting on the bay enclosed with glass and this has made it a comfortable winter resort for those to whom the winters of the North are too severe and the heats of Florida too enervating. This hotel was full of guests, for, unlike most sea-side resorts, it is patronized winter and summer.

General James F. B. Marshall, the Treasurer of the HAMPTON NORMAL AND AGRICULTURAL IN-STITUTE, received me here and we drove over a new cyster-shell road to the institute where I was the guest of my old friends General and Mrs.

Marshall, well-known at the Islands. GENERAL S. C. ABMSTRONG, who is the Principal as well as the originator of this institute was led to the selection of this terly unacquainted with maste. There is no limit it either kind or quantity of music. It will play Hymr Tunes, Popular Airs, Quadrilles, Polkus, Waltass, etc. with a clearness and accuracy which few performers can equal and can be carried under the arm. The ORGUI NETTE, with its automatic music sheets, represent both organ and organist, music, musician and maste teacher, and is admirably adapted for singing parties, duneing parties, evening entertainments, surprise par lies and educational purposes, and is therefore site for this magnificent enterprise from the circumstance of being stationed here, as an officer of the Freedman's Bureau, in charge of DOORS. WINDOWS AND BLINDS. the thousand "Contrabands" who swarmed here at the close of the war. His choice was a most happy one, for the climate is mild, provisions are cheap and the place is accessi-ble from Philadelphia, Baltimore, Norfolk and

The music can be changed instantaneously. The sets of Quadrilles and other pieces are complete in quantity, and mathematically correct in time; and as all the changes of figures are printed on the sheet, any one, even a child without ear for music or misical knowledge, can provide the music, do the prempting, and so far take the place of professional musicians as to call footh the lament—"our occupation is gone. Musicians The United States have in Hampton, besides Fortress Munroe, where the Artillery School is maintained, a "Soldier's Home," where 670 disabled veterans of the late war are cared for, and a national cemetery containing the graves of nearly 5,000 soldiers. All these institutions which are admirably managed and their grounds beautifully kept, add much to the attractions of Hampton.

"Virginia Hall" is the principal building of the institute, built of brick made by the students on the place. It is handsome and omfortable with all the modern improvements for lighting and warming. It is mainly used as a girl's dermitory, but its top story is a large hall and the dining saloon is beneath this. Besides the 300 colored students of both sexes, which are all that can be accommodated, are 50 Indian students who are now the objects of especial interest. The late fire which destroyed Academic Hall, the boy's dormitory, has cramped them very much for quarters and some recitations are held in Gen. Armstrong's house—an old Virginia mansion fronting on "Hampton Creek,"

Here "Colonel" Armstrong is building a comfortable house and he is showing the Southerners what can be done with their sandy soil in the way of "high farming." He is already an authority on "early lambs," green peas and clover, and soon "Waiala" will be a beautiful home for his family and of no superior for ramily now. The boating here is excellent. The Koles and the Kolesi are always tied to the dock and a few minutes pull in one of them puts you across the creek. Boat-sailing is also safe and enjoyable as the waters are smooth and the breeze constant. Col. Armstrong is contemplating wind-mills for irrigation, in order that he may be able to produce always a maximum crop. In front of "Wai-ala" are Hampton Roads—a haven of refuge for ships from all parts of the world, and here is the memorable spot where the little Monitor stopped the threatening career of the Merri-

A few minutes walk from Ithe nstitute is the old village of Hampton - which was nearly all burned during the war, as MacGruder re-treated from Ben. Butler. President Taylor's mansion remains and also St. John's Church where Gen. Washington worshipped.

Eight miles from here is "Big Bethel"— the scene of one of the early battles of the war. This village is most characteristically southern. Here the negro has not yet lost his picturesqueness by contact with northern civilization. The "steer carts are funny affairs. A stanted heifer or bull is harnessed with ropes between the shafts of a little twowheeled cars. In it are piled the negroes of all ages "going to maket." The negro has reduced the matter of patching his clothes to a science and his garments shew "premedi-tated poverty. I am told that he is gradually getting bold of land and his circumstances are improving. COLORED PREACHING. Gen. Armstrong took me one Sunday after-noon to a colored church where we heard the Gospel expounded according to the ideal type of negro ante bellum preaching. After the sermon letters were distributed, a hymn was 'lined" and sung and a general hand shaking closed the meeting. THE TEACHERS. Gen. Armstrong has been most fortunate in the teachers he has been able to secure. These, some 30 in numbers, from the best achools of the North, are most efficient aids to the management of this complex institution and they afford a very agreeable society of themselves. CO-EDUCATION OF THE SEXES.

What pleased me most was the freedom with which both sexes are allowed to associate with each other—in the classes at recitation, at their meals and at play. This is the true philosophy, I think. It satisfies the desire philosophy, I think. It satisfies the desire for companionship, and at the same time a sense of honor and propriety of behavior is taught and insisted upon. I am told that the departures from moral rectitude during the twelve years since the institute was estab-lished have been very rare. The students are taught to be courteous and honorable, and such an esprit de corps is developed here that the severest punishment that can be inflicted upon a student is that of expulsion,

Industrial occupations.

The loys earn their schooling by work on the farms belonging to the school and in the workshops. A squad of one-fourth of their number work one day each week. In the workshops shoe-making, printing, carpentering are taught to negroes and Indians. A large steam saw mill has just been added. The girls do the cecking, house work, sowing and some run knitting machines.

No small task it has been to secure financial support for this school. Besides grants from the United States and the State of Virginia, much depends upon the gifts of individuals. The General's personal magnetism of manner and the subwaiasm he shows in his work have. PINANCES. and the suthusiasm he shows in his work have, however, made his cause many friends, especially in New England and its success seems now assured. This summer "Academic Hall" will be re-built and also a new Indian cotters of break and also a new Indian cotters of break and also a new Indian cottage of brick.

I have said nothing as yet about recitations. Sufficient of the various branches of knowledge are to turn out graduates capable of being efficient school teachers for the colored popula-tion of this country. Latin, Greek, French or German are not taught here but the English is in a most thorough manner.

The school assembles morning and evening for prayers where a most agreeable feature is gime inspired. Idon't know when I have been nore moved than by the plaintive strains of Swing low, sweet charlot " and "View de Land. At evening prayers the General is accustomed to talk plainly to the students on such of the common topics of life as circumstances press upon his attention. On Sunday evening I addressed them on missionary work in the Pacifib and never spoke to a more attention or interesting audience.
